Not By Might, Nor By Power, But By My Spirit, Saith The Lord Of Hosts

The photo seen here is of Apostle Bishop D.L.Brooks, D.D.W. and Elder O.C. Williams, with his wife Mrs Linda William Elder Williams is presenting a $45,000.00 cashier check as an offering to Holy Trinity Church Of God In Christ. Apostle Bishop Brooks, D.D.W. is shown examining the copy of said check, which was presented as an offering to God, from Elder Williams and his wife. Apostle Bishop Brooks, D.D.W., has named Elder Williams as Manager of the Church owned Department Store.

It is the church's endeavors to be able to present to its members and the gneral public merchandise at discount prices. In the near future, the church expects to be able to supply its members and the general public general merchandise and food items to the sustainment of life. The scriptures said, Jesus came that we may have life and have it more abundantly. Life consists of two major parts -- Naturally and Spiritually. We hope to meet the needs of the natural man as well as the needs of the spiritual man or woman.

God's plan at work at Holy Trinity Church of God In Christ. Since the church was founded in a small store front at 2719 East Madison, in Seattle, Washington, 14 years ago. The church relocated to 1016 South 10th Street in Tacoma in 1978. The Church is now at 1313 South 'J' Street. The church holds titles to several properties such as:

Bishop Brooks, Mrs. Linda William, Rev. O.C. William. "$45,000 copy of check, looks good"

1307 South 'K' Street (Edwards Karate School)
1401 South 11th Street (Tacoma Facts Newspaper)
1016 South 10th Street (Agrape Force)
1313 South 'J' Street (Holy Trinity Church of God In Christ)
1118 South 'K' Street (Holy Trinity Church of God In Christ Department Store).
Several low-income rental houses. With the property located at 1401 South 11th, it extends from Sheridan to Cushman.

All of this was accomplished by the use of God's Plan, by the founder, Apostle Bishop D.L. Brooks, D.D.W.

God's Holy Plan as recorded in the Bible consists only of tithes and offerings. Malachi 3:8-12 and Matthews 23:23. This is the foundation for the building and structuring of the sanctuaries and places of worship. And for the welfare of the people in general. Sanctuary selling, Jesus rebuked them - that did so. " And Jesus went into the temple of God, and cast out all them that sold and bought in the temple, and overthrew the tables of the money-changers, and the seats of them that sold doves, And said unto them, It is written, My house shall be called the house of prayer; but ye have made it a den of thieves." (Matthews 21: 12-13)

By Apostle Bishop D.L. Brooks, D.D.W.

"An Attempt To Politically Embarrass

In Washington, Democratic Vice Presidential nominee Geraldine Ferraro said she would disclose the finances and income tax returns of herself and her husband, John Zaccaro, within 10 days.

Ferraro was responding to a complaint filed by the conservative Washington legal Foundation.

The foundation said she had violted the law by not disclosing her husband's financial holdings and called on the House Ethics Committee to investigate.

Ferraro called the complaint "an attempt to politically embarrass me. I'm not embarrassed."

EEOC Dedicates Conference Room

On Thursday, July 26, 1984, the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC) dedicated the conference room it uses for agency deliberations as the Clarence M. Mitchell, Jr., Conference Room. Mitchell, longtime lobbyist for the NAACP and a founder of the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights, died last March in his hometown of Baltimore, MD, at the age of 73.

Mitchell's son, Michael Bowen Mitchell, spoke during the ceremony. "This is an important commitment," he said. "Not only the dedication of this physical space, but also your dedication (as the EEOC) to equal employment opportunity."

Michael Mitchell informed EEOC Chairman Clarence Thomas of the Mitchell family's intention to present EEOC with the original cut and pasted copy of Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 which was drafted by his late father.

"This was my father's dream," Mitchell noted, "that fair employment practices to made the law of this land so that all Americans can realize their dreams."

Taxes

Reagan, vacationing at his California Ranch, had told reporters Monday: "We have no plans for, nor will I allow any plans for, a tax increase period." However, Bush characterized Reagan as leaving his options open to seek "revenue increases, but Larry Speakes, White House spokeman, attempted to downplay the contrast. "I think you should look at the Vice President's words and the President's and there's just not that much difference."

President Reagan's re-election campaign has been thrown on the defense and caught up in uncertain statements and apparent contradictions over the issue of raising taxes to reduce the Federal deficit. Approximately two weeks ago, the President's top aides seemed delighted when Mondale said he would raise taxes if elected. A senior White House official predicted then that Reagan would easily dismiss the Democratic President's nominee's parallel contention that the President's would also raise taxes in 1985.

White House officials maintained that their basic point was still getting across. "We still think the impression is out there that Ronald Reagan doesn't want to raise taxes, and Walter Mondale does."

Attorney General Makes Candidacy Official

Washington State Attorney General Ken Eikenberry today made official hs candidacy for a second term by filing with the Secretary of States, Office in Olympia. In announcing his candidacy, Eikenberry said he has been an Attorney General for all of the people of the state, "In the 1980 campaign I promised to keep the Attorney General's Office independent and free from outside interests, and free from petty politics. I have kept that promise." Eikenberry said he will work hard over the next four years to improve the rights of crime victims, and make life tougher for the criminal.

HAVE YOU BELIEVE OUR REPORT?
SERIES #45
ISAIAH 53: 1&2

Who hath believed our report? and to whom is the arm of the Lord revealed?

For he shall grow up before him as a root out of dry ground.

He hath no form nor comiliness: and when we shall see him, there is no beauty that we should desire him.

WORDS OF WISDOM
ISAIAH 62

For Zion's sake will I not hold my peace, and for Jerusalem's sake I will not rest, until the righteousness thereof go forth as brightness and the salvation thereof as a lamp that burneth. And the Gentiles shall see thy righteousness, and all kings thy glory: and thou shalt be called by a new name, which the mouth of the Lord shall name. Thou shalt also be a crown of glory in the hand of the Lord, and a royal diadem in the hand of thy God. Thou shalt no more be termed Forsaken; neither shall thy land any more be termed Desolate: but thou shalt be called Hephzibah, and thy land Beulah: for the Lord delighteth in thee, and thy land shall be married. For as a young man marrieth a virgin, so shall thy sons marry thee: and as the bridegroom rejoiceth over the bride, so shall thy God rejoice over thee. I have set watchmen upon thy walls, O Jerusalem, which shall never hold their peace day nor night: ye that make mention of the Lord, keep not silence, And give him no rest, till he establish, and till he make Jerusalem a praise in the earth. The Lord hath sworn by his right hand, and by the arm of his strength, Surely I will no more give thy corn to be meat for thine enemies; and the sons of the stranger shall not drink thy wine, for the which thou hast laboured: But they that have gathered it shall eat it, and praise the Lord; and they that have brought it together shall drink it in the courts of my holiness.

Go through, go through the gates; prepare ye the way of the people; cast up, cast up the highway; gather out the stones; lift up a standard for the people. Behold, the Lord hath proclaimed unto the end of the world, Say ye to the daughter of Zion, Behold, thy salvation cometh; behold, his reward is with him, and his work before him. And they shall call them, The holy people, The redeemed of the Lord; and thou shalt be called, Sought out, A city not forsaken.

Being The Boss

A boss has the authority to tell his or her employees what to do. If he/she doesn't have that authority, then he/she obviously isn't the boss. Yet a good boss doesn't go around ordering people to do things just to hear the sound of his/her own voice.

Why not? For one thing, because it usually isn't necessary. Secondly, it's not an effective way to get things done. People don't like to be ordered around, especially by someone who obviously enjoys playing dictator. If you want cooperation - and a boss needs cooperation to get the best results - there are better ways to get it.

Never order anyone to do anything unless you have to. And the fact is you'll rarely ever have to. Just ask them to do what you want - and don't hesitate to use the word "please."

This isn't a sign of weakness it's a matter of simple courtesy, of voluntary respect for the people who work for you. It gives them a chance to cooperate voluntarily, without rubbing their noses in the fact that you're the boss and they have to do what you say.

When you ask someone to do something, take time to explain why - especially if there might be any questions in his or her mind.

By showing that what you want him/her to do makes sense, it makes your request seem all the more reasonable. If there's a special reason why you want that person to do it - because it's important and you know he or she will do a good job - say so!

If you follow through on your requests if you check up to be sure that people have done, what you asked them to, and if not, why not - they'll know you mean business.

You'll get better results without even having to raise your voice, and your employees will love you.

Eat less - Exercise more

As the years roll by, the pounds do not have to pile up. A convenient and poular assumption among weight-gaining individuals is that at some unfortunate point in middle age a late-blooming mechanism sabotages their ability to stay trim. It is completely false. Adults gain weight over the years because their activity rate slows down - it is just that simple.

Many people, especially men, are vigorous athletes in their teens and 20's and when they get involved in work and have less free time, they continue to eat at the same rate. All they eat goes to their waists and bottoms. A special type of fat, called "brown fat" accumulates intra-abdominaly and around the organs. This process does not induce weight gain, but it does spell a less "toned and youthful look".

° Stop it before it starts.

Keep an eye on your exercise rate and the way you live your life. Before you gain, eat less. Eat sensibly and keep track of how active you are.

° Avoid empty calorie foods.

Concentrate on getting nutrient-dense, low-calorie foods. Sugar doesn't have any nutritional merit. It provided calories, and that's all. It may as well be eliminated from your diet.

Alcohol is another high-calorie pitfall for adults.

Get heart-pumping exercise.

Fairs Scheduled For Tacoma

People Center Market

If you're been looking for a unique, informative and fun way to spend the remainder of your summer weekends look no further. Every Saturday from August 11th through September 8th there will be a different fair downtown at the Tacoma Center Market. Each Saturday's fair has a separate theme starting with a "Farmers Market" with fresh produce from numerous local farmers and a variety of arts and crafts booths. Good ole "down-home" fun is planned with horse-drawn hay rides, square dancing, a blue grass band and lots more.

On August 18th the second Saturday fair is titled "Keep Tacoma Safe" with appearances and safety tips from the Tacoma Fire and Police Departments. Youngsters will especially enjoy the fire engine and motorcycle exhibits along with a special appearance by Tim Noah and his band, plus clowns, mimes, storytellers and other demonstrations and activities.

Next on August 25th it's a "health, Fund & Fitness" fair that will keep you smiling and perhaps your feet moving with entertainment by the Whistlestop Dance Co., demonstrations on aerobics, break-dancing and karate. Find out what's ahead for the Tacoma Stars Soccer Team, get your blood pressure checked or even take a stress test.

The following week there are two days of activities, August 31 and September 1st. It's a salute to the "Good Ole Summer Days" with jugglers, mimes, storytellers, and music, highlighted with appearances by a barbar shop quartet, the Cornucopia Concert Band and a special guest on the 1st.

September 8th is the final fair and it's geared to introduce perhaps some new hobbies or interests worth pursuing this fall. "Something New For You" includes exhibits and demonstrations on flower arranging, many crafts, plus a special art gallery 'Case Show' featuring national and international artists from decorative to collector art -- sponsored by the American Art Company.

To complete the festive atmosphere merchants of the Tacoma Center Market will be offering free food samples every Saturday. If you want additional information a printed schedule of all the events is available at the Tacoma Center Market.

The Employment Cost Index (ECI) for private industry workers in western states rose 1.0 percent in the 3-month period ended June 1984, according to Sam Hirabayaski, regional commissioner of the U.S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics. The increase, which matched that reported for the same period in 1983, brought the ECI -- West to 122.2 (June 1981 = 100). For the year ended in June 1984, the increase was 4.8 percent.

Both the West and the North Central regions reported the smallest increases in employer compensation costs for the year, falling well behind both the South and the Northwest, and the U.S. average rise of 5.4 percent.

PSALMS 111

Praise ye the Lord. I will praise the Lord with my whole heart, in the assembly of the upright, and in the congregation.

The works of the Lord are great, sought out of all them that have pleasure therein. His work is honorourable and glorious: and his righteousness endureth for ever.

He hath made his wonderful works to be remembered: the Lord is gracious and full of compassion He hath given meat unto them that fear him: he will ever be mindful of his covenant. He hath shewed his people the power of his works, that he may give them the heritage of the heathen.

The works of his hands are verity and judgment; all his commandments are sure. They stand fast for ever and ever, and are done in truth and uprightness. He sent redemption unto his people: he hath commanded his covenant for ever: holy and reverend is his name.

The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom: a good understanding have all they that do his commandments: his praise endureth for ever.

We welcome news of your church and civic events.

Tony Brown's Comments

A Sermon For Rev. Jackson

Jesse Jackson gained a lot of ground this year. He focused national attention on the Black community; energized many who had given up on the electoral system; and, most importantly made America think twice about the qualifications of any Black person for president.

In the highest-rated television moments of the entire Democratic Convention, the Baptist preacher turned power broker modestly gave himself due credit: "If in my high moments, I have done some good, offered some service, shed some light, healed some wounds, rekindled some hope---or in any way---helped somebody, then this campaign has not been in vain."

Jackson, by his own admission, then confessed that he had been responsible for "strains" in Black-Jewish relations and some campaign excesses. He penitently appealed to Jews with a plea of forgiveness: "If in my low moments, in word, deed or attitude, through some error of temper, taste or tone, I have caused anyone discomfort, created pain or revived someone's fears, that was not my truest self---please forgive me. Charge it to my head... so limited in its finitude; (not to) my heart, which is boundless in its love for the entire human family. I am not a perfect servant. I am a public servant... Be patient. God is not finished with me yet."

That last line: "God is not finished with me yet," swept even his enemies and the antheists into his open arms of honest self-appraisal. And, literally, confession is truly good for the soul.

In seeking the high ground of moral redemption, Jackson is impeccable in his quest for 'truth and justice.' But when he attempts to deliver on his political demands, he is inept. Even after his longawaited hour of glory at center stage, he felt ignored by Mondale.

And these frustrations of political failure complicate his ability to do what he does best--teaching the word of God in a contemporary context. There are those who will chuckle at this kind of talk, but we are all being used by the Will of God, or Allah, whichever name for perfection you prefer. It goes without saying, then, that we are assigned different missions.

Some of us are better singers or talkers or thinkers or runners or politicians--than the rest. And we should be comfortable doing what we do best--if it serves the Will of God. Not many, if any, of us can do what Jackson has done.

Moreover, Black people's pride in his success is based on a consciousness of group identity which seeks an elusive respect from White. It is not based on his ultra-leftist ideologies toward Cuba, Central America and the PLO.

Nor is it based on his previous stridency towards Jews. Opinion poll after opinion poll shows that the majority of Blacks do not harbor hostility towards Jews and that Jews are "more sympathetic than other non-black Americans with the aspiration of Blacks to achieve equality," According to Louis Harris. There is no political payoff in a trumped-up Black-Jewish schism.

Another high point came for Jackson when he scolded his impassioned, but frustrated supporters that he was "embarrassed" by the booing aimed at Andy Young and Coretta King. Again, he used redemption as his weapon. And it worked because it was based on the truth.

Walter Mondale's truth, however, is his pragmatism. He is a seasoned, old-line machine politician. While Jackson could turn the podium into a pulpit and the convention into a prayer meeting, he lacked the know-how to hold the political ground he had taken.

Beyond that, the deficits lead to higher interest rates that strangle economic growth, feed inflation, and take an ever-growing share of the budget. This year, the U.S. Government's interest payments will amount to more than all of the cuts in the social programs made over the past three years.

So we've got to find a way out of the destructive cycle of huge deficits that serve as excuses for refusing to invest in America's productive capacity and in putting our people to work in a growing, full-employment economy.

Securing Jobs For All

Full employment is not simply job creation -- it is the creation of a stable economy that generates enough decent jobs for all. Today's economy is not stable and it generates many fewer jobs than we may think it does.

If we see the unemployment problem in its full dimension there is a clear pattern of more frequent recessions, shorter recovery periods, higher unemployment, and a permanent Depression in the Black community.

Since 1971 we've have four recessions and two of them, including the last one, would have been labelled Depressions in the past. The beginning of each recession period found more people unemployed than at the start of the previous recession.

Unemployment is getting longer too, as the jobless are out of work for longer periods. Currently, some two million people were jobless for 27 weeks or more -- not including almost as many who are no longer counted as being in the labor force.

Another disturbing trend is the fact that fewer of the jobless get unemployment compensation benefits. In the past about half did -- that's down to about a third now.

Still another trend has serious implications for the economy, and especially for opportunities for the jobless. The official statistics tell us how many jobs there are but while the job-generating capacity of the economy looks impressive, a large proportion of jobs are part-time or marginal.

About 20 percent of the jobs in America are part-time jobs -- over 19 million. About five and a half million people work part-time when they want full-time work.

And many full-time jobs aren't really full-time, since they are characterized by periodic layoffs. Only about half the work force works full-time, all year round.

Blacks, relegated to marginal jobs, are the prime victims of the skewed job market.

Over a third of all black workers had two spells of joblessness last year. Each typically lasted over 16 weeks.

Add to that the millions of jobs that pay below-poverty level wages and you can see that the official statistics mask the real weakness of a labor market that leaves many millions of families exposed to unemployment and depressed living standards.

Given this, it's hard to get excited about a recovery that has barely affected blacks, minorities and the poor. And that's especially so when we see a poll of business executives that says a majority expects another recession next year of the year after.

Achieving stable economic growth shared by all is still a yet-to-be-attained goal. That kind of growth will depend on passing job creation programs, and also on reducing the budget deficit.

We can't ignore that enormous deficit. Supporters of full employment must deal with the massive overspending and undertaxing that wounds our economy, and the enormous deficit provides an excuse for opposing job creation measures. When we ask for a federal jobs program or for federal incentives for private employers to hire and train the disadvantaged, our opponents just point to the budget deficit and say "we can't afford it."

Mondale also insulted and ignored Jackson's status and his delegates' clout back home. Behind the scenes, his forces manipulated events that moved him closer to moderate American politics and away from Jackson's very-left proposals. It was also aimed at proving to Whites and Jews that he could control Jackson -- and Blacks.

As a campaign tactic, Mondale will give social programs favored by Blacks lip service, but not top billing. He wants to plant himself dead center and woo White males, afraid of spending, independents and White southerners who deserted his party for Reagan in 1980.

But Mondale's ultimate judges will be the Black voters in November. If he is to defeat Ronald Reagan (as 95 percent of Blacks want), he must have a heavy Black turnout in the southern states, especially. After the convention, however, the Black Jackson delegates were cool to Mondale. "Mondale has nothing to offer me," a Philadelphian observed.

Jackson is seen by Mondale as the difference in Black support this fall. This amounts to this bottom-line scenario: If Mondale's victory depends on the enthusiasm of Black voters and the "enthusiasm" of many Blacks depends on Jackson, then Jackson's status as a top Mondale surrogate must be assured.

In order to be viable as politician with a larger appeal and of use to his party, Jackson must avoid stampeding Whites into the Republican Party with overheated rhetoric and old patterns of divisive insensitivity, acts which could guarantee President Reagan's re-election.

To hold onto his achievements, to avoid being exploited by Mondale and to broaden his base, Jackson must take the moral high ground -- and hold it.

Subluxation - a disease

Subluxation is a disease occuring worldwide in epidemic porportions. It is a bodily malfunction or condition, just as diabetes and heart trouble, for example, are conditions. The difference lies in the fact that subluxation of cause other conditions to occur. There are two kinds of subluxations: (1) An accute subluxation produces sudden symptoms which are of short duration and are sometimes self-correcting. (2) A chronic subluxation is of long duration and if not corrected, can cause severe symptoms and degenerations. The longer a subluxation is allowed to remain uncorrected, the more extreme the resulting condition can become.

It has been estimated that as much as 90% of the world's population suffers from subluxations of varying degree interfering with the function of the body and, therefore interfering with normal health.

What is a subluxation? Subluxation is a term used by Doctors of Chiropractic to describe the misalignment of bones, resulting in nerve pressure or irritation. Subluxation of the spinal vertebra are by far the most comon type even the slightest misalignment can produce pressure and irritation upon nerves, effecting improper communication of vital nerve impulses to the organs, cells, and tissues of the body.

The skull, which houses and protects the brain from which most nerves originate rests atop the spinal column. From the brain, the spinal cord extends downward through a vertical canal, formed by the vertebrae of the spinal column, which houses and protects the spinal cord. The nerves branch off the spinal cord exiting in between each pair of vertebrae. Each nerve extends to and ultimately controls, a specific area of the body.

Subluxations are caused from very simple bending movements for examples or from a severe blow such as from an auto accident. Subluxation can be corrected by a Chiropractor. This corrections will allow for normal nerve function and ultimately to eliminate your pain, discomfort or most bodily malfunctions.

College Owner Pleads Guilty

George C. Bates, owner of Bremerton Business College has pleaded guilty to collecting unauthorized retirement benefits from the Social Security Administration, totalling $32,577.30.

Bates was claiming he was retired, while he, in fact continue to operate his College.

Pursuant to an agreement filed in U.S. District Court today, Bates will be required to repay $65,154.60 as a double damage penalty and, in addition, he faces up to one year imprisonment and a $1,000 fine, under the criminal section of the Social Security Act, Title 42 United States Code, Section 408(d).

Bates admitted to concealing his work and earnings from the Bremerton Business College with the intent to secure unauthorized Social Security benefits. Facts presented to Magistrate Sweigert by Assistant United States Attorney William J. Glueck revealed that Bates had filed a retirement claim with the Social Security Administration in 1978 expressing an intent to sell the college to an unrelated third party.

Under current law, individuals who have reduced earnings due to retirement are eligible for payments between the ages of 62 and 70.

After attainment of age 70, the law now allows beneficiaries to work and earn unlimited amounts and draw full payments. Anyone with a question concerning income which needs to be reported should call the Social Security Teleservice Center at 1-800-562-6350.
